THE STORY OF CAMP GREEN LAKE

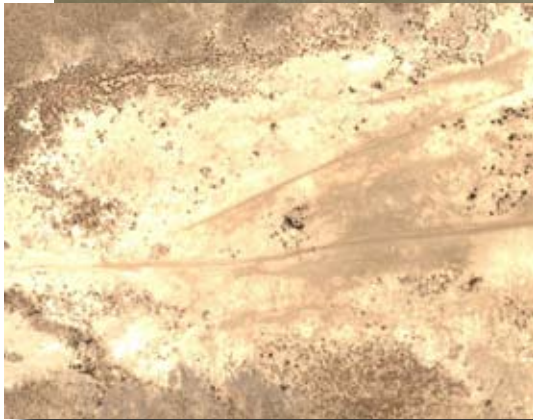

In late 1930's Captain Jeremiah Greene and party left the Eastern Seaboard and traveled west. His intention was to strike it rich in California as many had done a generation before. As the group traveled in the California desert, Captain Greene stated to his associates, "This is the place! We have the technology and ability to make this desert blossom as the rose." It is rumored that one member of the party pointed out that a rose contains many thorns, to which Captain Greene handed him a shovel and told him to begin digging. This philosophy is still practiced here at Camp Green Lake, the day will come that the desert will blossom as the rose and for those that doubt, they dig holes.

The days are filled with sunshine and records indicate that it hasn't rained on Camp Green Lake in many decades. This provides the young men of Camp Green Lake ample opportunity for outdoor activities. While in the outdoors, camp counselors share with the residents the flora and fauna of the area. The spotted lizard, while poisonous, is an excellent example of adaptability. In this less than hospitable environment they have been able to thrive. The spotted lizard has been adopted as our camp mascot, to be an example for all.

Counselors and medical staff are available twenty-four seven, every hour of every day that a young man is at Camp Green Lake his physical and mental health are priority one. A healthy young man is a happy one.

All of the activities at Camp Green Lake have a singular goal. To help mold young men into physically fit and confident young men. Our track record has been excellent, in that once a young man leaves Camp Green Lake, he has been shown the road to a better life and never comes back.
